Community at the Heart of Learning

At Tealby School, we believe that learning does not only take place within the four walls of a classroom. Our community is a powerful curriculum driver that enriches the experiences of our children, bringing learning to life and helping them develop a deep sense of belonging. World Book Day provided a wonderful example of how collaboration between school, families, and local partners can create meaningful opportunities for our pupils.

The excitement was palpable as children browsed the wide range of titles from the books on offer - for many, choosing just one book proved to be the hardest part! Throughout the week, classrooms and corridors were filled with enthusiastic conversations about new characters, stories, and favourite authors – a true celebration of reading for pleasure.

Our youngest learners also enjoyed a special opportunity to connect with members of our local community.

Class 1 spent time with the lovely Tealby villagers who attended Wednesday's Coffee Morning, sharing stories and conversation together. These moments of intergenerational connection are invaluable. They help children develop confidence, communication skills, and an appreciation for the people and stories that make up the fabric of their village. We are incredibly grateful to everyone who welcomed the children so warmly.

The spirit of community continued at our Book Fair at Tealby Village Hall, which was wonderfully attended by families and local residents. It was fantastic to see so many people coming together to celebrate books and reading. We would like to extend a huge thank you to Clare from Little Owls Bookshop and Kay from Market Rasen Library for joining us and helping to make the event such a success. Their passion for books and literacy is inspiring, and their support helps us nurture a love of reading in our pupils.

We must also give special recognition to the wonderful Class 3 girls, who ran an excellent fundraising stall at the event and raised a whopping £150. Their enthusiasm, organisation, and teamwork were fantastic to see and perfectly demonstrated the leadership and responsibility our pupils develop through real-life experiences.

These events remind us that when a school works closely with its community, learning becomes richer, more authentic, and more memorable. At Tealby School, we are proud to place our community at the heart of our curriculum – creating opportunities for our children not only to learn, but to connect, contribute, and thrive.
